FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Becker Meisel Launches Family Law and IP Departments

Livingston, N.J., March 31, 2010 – Becker Meisel announced today the addition of Family Law and Intellectual Property law to its growing stable of practice groups. Both departments will be based in Cherry Hill, New Jersey.

The Family Law department will be headed by widely recognized attorney Richard C. Klein, while the IP practice group will be led by Timothy J. Szuhaj, Esq.

According to Becker Meisel Managing Partner, Martin Borosko, “We are extremely excited to be able to offer high quality legal services in the area of family law and intellectual property law to businesses and individuals throughout the state. And I am especially pleased to have attorneys the caliber of Mr. Klein and Mr. Szuhaj leading this effort.”

Formerly Chair of the Family Law Department of Spector Gadon & Rosen, Mr. Klein has practiced family law for over 35 years and has served on countless state and county bar association committees. He has appeared on such media staples as Good Morning America, World News Tonight, Inside Edition, CNN, CNBC and been written about in such publications as The Philadelphia Inquirer, Parents Express and The Boston Globe. He will be joined in the family law department by attorneys Drew A. Molotsky and Kimberly A. Packman.

Mr. Szuhaj, also formerly of Spector Gadon & Rosen, focuses his practice in the areas of intellectual property law; technology, internet, and e-commerce law; as well as prosecution of trademark, service mark and copyright applications and assignments; negotiating and drafting licenses, and managing intellectual property portfolios.

Becker Meisel is a mid-market firm serving the New York, New Jersey and Philadelphia corridor. The firm provides litigation, transactional, counseling and regulatory representation to clients ranging from major multi-national corporations to local businesses, families and individuals.

The firm recently opened a new office, its fourth, at the Woodland Falls business complex in Cherry Hill. It also maintains offices in Livingston, NJ, Shrewsbury, NJ and New York City.
